It is the Home for Apprentices, and dating from 1873, which requires to be rebuilt, and the land stands idle, awaiting the means to go forward. In these two homes 8.231 young women have been resident-a need which speaks for itself!

The forty young women referred to who found us by accident were able to pay their way, but had largely spent their slender means in finding that there were friends or a home suited to their purses. That these forty came from nineteen different states shows how young women are flocking to Paris or the continent of Europe, One of them, in her teens, represented a party of twenty employed by one firm in Paris. On finding the home she exclaimed: "Why were we never told? ADA LEIGH LEWIS, Hon. President of the Ada Leigh Homes in
